RADIO WORKSHOP TO BROADCAST FEBRUARY 3

Annual Concert For Red Cross In Final Stage

Dress Rehearsals Set by Director For Coming Week

The annual Red Cross Concert, all-student variety show to be presented under War Council sponsorship in Moyse Hall on Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, January 25, 26, and 27, is now entering its final stages of preparation, stated producer-director Victor C. Goldbloom in an interview last night. Dress rehearsals have been set for Sunday afternoon and Wednesday evening of the coming week, he added, and the complete program is already in the hands of the printers.

The cast of the 1945 Concert, third of a series which in its first two editions contributed a total of more than $800 to the Canadian Red Cross Society, will include several performers featured in previous years. Shirley Culley, M.S.P.E vocalist who has appeared at many campus functions in addition to the first Red Cross Concerts, has chosen a group of songs which includes George Gershwin's "The Man I Love" and Irving Berlin's "Always". Winston Mahabir, making his first solo appearance in the series, will sing Donizetti's "Una Furtiva Lagrima" and the "Kashmiri Song".

Other Stars

Ben Albert, boogie-woogie and jazz pianist, will present a variety of piano solos, a four-handed duet with Maury Gelfand, and a patter song similar to his rendition last year of "A Personal Friend of the Czar Was I." Richard Goldbloom, who was a featured performer in 1943 and 1944, will return again this year, playing the "Ritual Dance of Fire" by Manuel de Falla, and the "Warsaw Concerto" by the English composer Richard Addinsell.

Variety Numbers

Other items of the variety program include a special demonstration of juggling by Vic Curran, first-year medical student; accordeon solos by Ray Felson; a short skit featuring Ruth Lichtig and Elsa Lehmann (whose sister, Carla Lehmann, is a British motion picture star); and a specially conceived dance routine by Elspeth Russell and Ruth Schwartz (both recent graduates of the McGill School of Physical Education), entitled "In This Corner——" and reported to be a satire on the celebrated Sabbath-Cortez fights of the Athletics Festival series.

Seat Sale Tomorrow

Seats will go on sale tomorrow, the statement concluded, with box-offices to be located at the Union Tuck Shop, at Walter Reed's office in the Arts Building, at Fred Barton's office in the Engineering Building, and at Mr. Marshall's of-

Prizes Offered For Costumes At Cosmo Ball

Sewell Orchestra Provides Music At Masquerade

Final arrangements are being completed for the Masquerade Ball, scheduled for Friday night at 9 p.m. in the Union Ballroom, with the latest reports stating that some of the dance prizes have been received from Notman's Studio, Murray's, and Peter Hall. President of the Cosmopolitan Club. Table reservations are lagging with only a quarter of the expected reservations phoned in. The deadline is at 7 p.m. Friday.

Notman's Studio has contributed two portraitures of the winners eight by ten inches in size, which will be taken on appointment with the studio; Murray's has donated a War Saving Certificate; and Peter Hall will photograph each prize-winning couple on the spot.

Table Reservations

The dance committee has stressed the importance of having table reservations made before coming to the dance. Reservations can be made by calling Marquette 4332 and leaving the details of the party and its requirements with Karl White, Louis Cornilliac, or Clive Gonsalves. Tables at the dance are to be marked with placards and lists of the table reservations will be available at the door.

The music for the Masquerade this year is being provided by

War Services Register Co-eds

School For Teachers Signs Up En Masse In First Aid Course

105 women students registered this week for the second term of Women's War Services it was announced in a C.W.S.P. report last night. The School for Teachers registered en masse for the First Aid Course, bringing the total registration in that course from 3 to 59. The Home Nursing Course had a registration of 11 students; Girl Guide Leadership Course, 13; and Camp Counsellor Course, 22.

Students in the Red Cross Corps and those doing voluntary work did not register, but have continued their courses from the first term. The total registration in all courses and services is approximately 60 per cent. of the total co-ed registration, the report further announced.

Registration will continue in the Women's Union Executive offices from one to five p.m. every day next week.

MASTHEAD MEETING

All members of The Daily's masthead, including night editors, associate editors and department heads are expected to attend a masthead meeting at 5 p.m. tomorrow in The Daily office.

MCF To Hold Hymn-sing Sunday At Student House

Th McGill Christian Fellowship is holding a Sunday evening hymn sing, January 21, at 9 p.m. in the Student House, 3445 Peel Street.

The singing of favorite and well-known hymns will be featured, followed by a short talk by Peter Macaskill, president of the Group.

The executive announced that the meeting is open to all students and that refreshments will be served.

Veteran Society Contributions Are Sole Returns

Double First Objective As Red Cross Drive Enters Fourth Day

The annual campus campaign in aid of the Red Cross Society enters its fourth day this morning, with returns received as yet only from the Veteran's Society.

The Society, which yesterday morning had already doubled the total of its objective as set by the war council, has to date collected the sum of $175. However it is expected that with an objective of $1.00 per student, the net result of the 1945 drive should exceed the $1,700.00 total of last year's canvass.

The deduction which each student wishes to make from his or her caution money is to be indicated on cards which are being distributed to members of the C.O.T.C.-U.A.T.C. at parades, and to the co-eds by their class presidents. On Friday, Jan. 26, the final day of the campaign, any men students who have not yet been contacted may receive their cards at Mr. Fletcher's office in the McGill Union, and co-eds may obtain theirs at the R.V.C. switchboard.

The Third Annual Red Cross Concert, under the direction of Victor C. Goldbloom, will wind up McGill's Red Cross Drive on Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. Tickets for the concert which is to be presented in Moyse Hall will go on sale tomorrow

Urges Canada Enter P.A. Union

Professor Humphrey Speaks at Meeting Of Int. Relations Club

Prof. Humphrey, of the law faculty, made a strong plea for Canada's entry into the Pan-American Union in his address to the International Relations Club last night.

He began his speech with a warm welcome to students from the University of Montreal who were present. Then, entering upon the subject under discussion, he quoted a statement by Premier King and also Gallup Poll figures to show how little Canadians know about what the Pan-American Union really is, following this with an outline of the history of the P.A.U. since its inception.

Turning to Canada in relation to the P.A.U., he stated that before 1940, Canada had regarded it largely as a part of "United States imperialism." But, he said in that year, due to Canada's entry into the

Hold Arts, Crafts Organization Meeting

An organizational meeting of all those interested in taking the new course in Arts and Crafts to be given by Dr. Crowell, will take place tomorrow afternoon at 5.15 p.m. in room two of RVC. The time for this meeting had originally been announced in The Daily as "tomorrow evening" but a member of the Women's Union Art Program Committee announced the definite time would be 5.15 p.m.

Pre-med Social Tonight At Park Slide

Tobogganing, Skating, Skiing To be Featured

The first Pre-Med social of the new year will be held this evening on the slopes of Mount Royal at the Montreal Park and Toboggan Club. The full facilities of the club have been reserved by the Society for the occasion and according to the executive this promises to be the best of the many socials it has organized.

Tonight's party has been patterned around the lines of an old-fashioned Canadian winter party. The many amusements of the club are open to the students. With the toboggan slide as the main attraction officials of the Club report that "the slide is in excellent condition with speed to satisfy the most avid enthusiast. There is the glassy expanse of Beaver Lake for skaters while the mountain offers many a fine hill for the skiers." Though toboggans are supplied, skiis and skates must be brought along to participate in the other entertainments for they are not available on the premises.

Continuous Dancing

Inside the club house there will be continuous dancing to the tunes of a nickelodeon. "The joy of waltzing in stocking feet will appeal to many an unfortunate co-ed who is usually tortured by the crushing onslaughts of her partners shoes," pointed out the executive. Refreshments will be served during the evening, at the club's snack bar.

Bill Fingland, president of the Pre-Meds, stated:: Caste and class are forgetten for tonight's party, every one is welcome—plumbers included. We hope to be able to give the students an evening of fun that will be long remembered."

The activities will get under way at eight o'clock. Those planning to attend are reminded to wear warm clothing and if they intend to use the slide to use proper discretion as to the quality of clothing. "Old clothes are preferable, for not only is warmth to be desired but should the wearer brush the sides of the chute there is a possibility of the occasional rip," stressed the executive.

Tickets are fifty cents per person and can be obtained at the Tuck Shop, from the members of the executive, or at the club itself for the late-comers.

Members of the Pre-Med Society are reminded that there will be a meeting at five tonight in the Union.

"Urban Mental Diseases" Subject of Faris Lecture

Next Wednesday Dr. R. E. Lee Faris, sociologist, professor, painter, and co-author of the book, "Mental Disorders in Urban Areas", will give the second in the series of "Lectures on Living" in Moyse Hall, McGill University.

The subject of his talk is to be "Social Heritage and the Behaviour of Children", the theme of his book.

"His research has lead to the determination that cases of mental disease in cities varied directly as the distance of the surveyed section away from the centre of the city, and that the different types of mental illness bore definitely on the section of the city in which they were found."

Dr. Lee Faris was formerly a member of the faculty of sociology at McGill University.

Rodolfo Gurdian Featured Today At Spanish Club

Guitar Solo, Singing, Rhumba, Samba, Conga To Highlight Program

A guitar solo and songs by Rodolfo Gurdian, vice-president of the Spanish Club, are to be featured at a meeting of the club, tonight at 8 p.m. in the Union Grill Room. Following this program, the members of the club will dance to South American music.

On the agenda of the meeting is the discussion of plans for the February dance of the club, and also of another meeting to be held at the end of the term. "As the club's program and finances are to be discussed, it is important that all members and would-be members attend this meeting," stated the president.

Rodolfo Gurdian and several other members of the club will sing Spanish and South American songs to the accompaniment of a guitar played by the former, in which the rest of the club will be invited to join.

The dances will consist of Rhumbas, Sambas, Tangos and a Conga line. Those who are not familiar with these steps are expected to ask any member of the executive to teach them. "It is hoped," continued the president, "that everyone present will be able to rhumba, samba and to do the tango before the evening is over."

The membership fee, payable at the meeting, is 75 cents. Refreshments will be served.

French Society Hears Gagnon At RVC Today

Jean-Louis Gagnon will address a meeting of "La Societe Francaise" today on the subject of "Le Canada dans le monde moderne." The meeting, which is sponsored by the Women's Union, will be held in the R.V.C. Common Room at 4 p.m. Refreshments will be served.

Mr. Gagnon, journalist, editor, radio commentator, and author, was born in Quebec city. He received his education in his native city, in Montreal and in Ottawa.

While he was at the University of Ottawa, he published an article in "L'Ordre" advocating the promotion of English educational systems in Quebec, claiming they would better equip French-Canadians for the world in which we live. For this, he was summarily "bounced out" of the university one month before he was to obtain his B.A. degree This confirmed his resolve to carry on the battle of free speech and thought in the Province of Quebec.

Having chosen the field of journalism, Mr. Gagnon, together with three friends, founded a monthly called "Vivre" in which they expressed their anti-clerical and slightly anti-British views. The paper lasted only a year. Mr. Gagnon's next venture was a novel on the Bennet Labor Camps on the strength of a two week' sojourn in one of them. He served as editor for a small town paper for six months; then he was "fired" for his editorials which were considered too radical for the local worthies

McGill Grad Talks to Asia

Major Donald Johns Of the Indian Army Broadcasts in East

Major Donald Johns, graduate of McGill, is now broadcasting to the peoples in the Far East. Enlisted in the Indian Army, he is playing an important part in the organization of the offensive against Japan by Mountbatten's forces.

Leaving Canada before the war for the Pacific area, Major Johns still officially lists 4006 Beaconsfield Avenue, Montreal, as his personal address. He graduated from McGill after working his way through as a bellboy in a Sherbrooke street hotel. In the summer he worked on the west coast of Canada and from that experience developed a yearning to see the lands beyond the Pacific—a wish which became a reality.

Major Johns became professor at the University of Kobe, mastered the Japanese language, and even delivered a series of lectures at the Imperial University in Tokyo—a great honor but an unpaid one.

He saw Canadian troops arrive in Hong Kong, and reached Singa-

Casting and Preliminary Rehearsals To Begin This Saturday at Union

"Mary and the Fairy," a comedy by Norman Corwin, well-known american radio writer, will be broadcast over radio station CBM of the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation, by members of the McGill Radio Workshop on Saturday, February 3 at 8 p.m. In announcing the final arrangements for this broadcast, Victor C. Goldbloom, president of the Workshop indicated, that providing certain production difficulties can be overcome, it is hoped, that the Workshop will have an opportunity for further broadcast within the near future.

Casting and preliminary rehearsals for the play, which is under the direction of Radio Workshop Production Director Charles Wassermann will begin next Saturday at 2.30 p.m. in the Music Room of the Union. Officials of the Workshop hope, that many members will attend this first meeting of the new year.

WELL-KNOWN PLAY

"Mary and the Fairy" was given a trial recording last term, when a cast under Workshop director Seymour Greenman recorded it at the World High Fidelity Studios. It was indicated last night, that some members of the previous cast would again be given parts in the present production, but that many replacements would be made.

Centering around the dreams and wishes of a smalltown department store sales-girl, who wins a commercial advertising contest, the play was first produced by the author over a network of American stations.

NOT FIRST BROADCAST

An announcement from the Radio Workshop, released yesterday, reads in part: "This is not the first time this organization will be heard over the air. During the first two years of its activities on the campus, the Workshop was heard locally over various stations in aid of different Victory Loans. A series of three plays were also presented over CBM in aid of the Nutrition Campaign. Last year, the same station carried a Workshop production of Arch Oboler's "Blood Story" presented in aid of the Canadian Red Cross Society's Blood Donor Drive."

The latter show was given a very favourable review by a city newspaper; shortly after this, negotiations were started with the CBC, to arrange a further opportunity for the Workshop to broadcast.

CBC Official Contacted

John de B. Payne, CBC program administrator for the Province of Quebec, then took the matter up; it was through what the Workshop announcement termed "Mr. Payne's wonderful cooperation" that the final arrangements were perfected.

Co-ed's Responsibility

Only 105 co-eds have enrolled for War Services for this term. These girls, plus the girls in the Red Cross Corps and those doing voluntary service, make up a very small percentage of the co-ed population on this campus.

At the beginning of last term, it was pointed out in an editorial that these services this year were voluntary, and were placed under the registration of the Women's Union, the official representative body of all students on the campus. A registration as low as this term shows, proves only one thing, that the co-eds on the campus are not dependable, in that they have not accepted responsibilities which they placed upon themselves. The logical conclusion will probably follow—the War Services will again come under faculty jurisdiction next fall and be made compulsory.

It was hoped, at the beginning of this year, that the condensation of preliminary and elementary courses for the purpose of permitting the girls to go into active services sooner would increase the interest in the War Services for women students. However, even with the persistent efforts of the Women's Union Executive to provide courses that would be interesting and enable the students to enter fields where they are most needed now, and will be in the rehabilitation programs of the Allied Nations, less than 60% of the co-eds have enrolled.

Complaints have been raised, particularly by the first year students, that volunteer work is not given to them when they ask for it. It should be pointed out that certain qualifications are set by the organizations for which workers are needed, and girls must qualify, not only by prerequisite courses, but by attendance records and dependability.

The responsibility which the co-eds accepted last fall in making these courses voluntary was not a light one. The need for qualified assistance at this time is greater than ever before if we are to put our full strength into the war effort. College students have a responsibility not only to the post-war era, but to the immediate drive of our country. Two hours a week for each student may seem a mere drop in the bucket to the country, but multiply this by the 1,000 college girls at McGill, and you have 2,000 working hours every week.

No girl can casually toss off this duty by saying it is voluntary. It is her own personal responsibility in upholding the dignity of herself, of her fellow students at the college which she represents, and of her country, whose war effort she can assist in this way.

But it is not only of the present that the co-ed must think, it is of the value that this training can be in the rehabilitation era. It will be many years yet before the post-war reconstruction plans are established. It is the responsibility of university women, as the future leaders of the humanitarian efforts of our communities, to take the lead in preparing a large reserve of personnel with which to carry out these plans.

Philosophical Materialism

(A Special Guest Column)

Once we have compromised with psychological necessity and admitted a measure of philosophy and, above all, vital idealism into some aspects of materialism, the latter becomes a cogent, active principle. In this form it represents a great advance over class-conscious naturalism, which was still bourgeois-romantic. In this form too it comes even closer to Spinoza's ethic.

But one vital difference between Spinozist (or any other) philosophy and materialism is that the latter makes a philosophy available to Everyman, not only to the esoteric mind. This was really what I was driving at in my first two articles, by appealing for assistance in developing a method (i.e. a philosophy) of study. The materialist transvaluation of values, giving us anchors to earth, makes it possible for each man to "figure out" the universe for himself. Such aspects as its flexibility—not insisting on the ability to construct edifices of abstract thought to support one hypothetical, categorical idea, but seeing each such idea historically, as a response to needs: its restoring dignity to each person, no longer having to be perpetually oppressed with other "greatness" or "goodness", but knowing that he is quite legitimate in finding value in himself merely as a living being: the whole clearing away of intellectual pyrotechnics: such aspects lend themselves excellently to the individual elaboration of a world concept by many more people than have heretofore sought concepts independently.

The simple fact of being given a key to the stable understanding of history is, however, not enough. Materialism may give us anchors to earth, but earth per se does not give us any emotional satisfaction. A materialist conception of the universe must repose upon an ideal concept of life in order to acquire positive psychological value. Cynical disillusioned "materialism" has no place in this search for the full expression of the life-impulse by the whole of society. Intellectual wish-fulfilment (i.e. the social ideal itself) is approved, for in this case it has a positive purpose. But psychological escapism, tending to retard the development of the social organism towards its most efficient articulation, is frowned upon. The materialist technique is applied in discriminating between what furthers and what harms the social ideal. For instance, conscience (race solidarity) is insisted on, not because it has any absolute value in itself, but because the individual will at the same time advance society and not find himself in painful conflict therewith, by being ethical. Similarly, misanthropy would be frowned upon not because of any intrinsic absolute wrongness, but because it is detrimental to society and undermines the individual's joy and belief in life (and in posterity, prerequisites for positive materialism.

Of course, there are more problems than can be counted in this struggle of society to orient itself about scientific principles, and the ultimate degree of success as well as the time required for it are moot questions. However, I must say that I believe this union of theoretical materialism and the life instinct, in the form of vital idealism, responds most fully to the intellectual needs of the coming stage of social evolution. In other words, to return to orthodox terminology, I believe the above approach to be "right".

Footnote—In a recent article I made the following statement, to which M.H.E. took exception: "In our period to be ethical is to be psychologically unhealthy—the unpardonable sin in the materialist's eyes." The objection was perfectly valid, inasmuch as I was thinking of "Materialist" in the sense in which I have defined it in this article—i.e. incorporating the social ideal. I do not however still maintain that is a tragic fact that anyone who would attempt consistently to carry through in our society the ethical pattern which we have been taught to idealize would be in a very short time a hopeless—and a useless—wreck.

Time and Tide

Fame Is Funny

Fame is a funny thing. To some it comes as a matter of course. To others, working hard to achieve it, it becomes an elusive goal, like the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow. Then, often, after it is almost within the grasp, it changes its name, and becomes notoriety.

Take Chaplin, for example. The funny man with the moustache who amused countless audiences was a hero. To him, fame came after hard work, and his achievement was complete. Or so it seemed, until The Trial came along, and day by day, the transformation became more and more apparent, from hero to ogre, from Fame to Notoriety.

Then, in reverse we might take General Patton. Sometime during the Italian campaign a story came over the wires telling of the American tank wizard's insulting remarks to a shell-shocked soldier. Patton showed a decided lack of taste in slapping the unfortunate man, and calling him "yellow", or so the tale went. Immediately pompous senators and Fish-like congressmen publicly castigated Patton, and when the furor was at its height, the general's notorious deeds had been wholeheartedly condemned.

But, once the Invasion was on, and the 3rd Army commander was pushing the Hun before him in magnificent fashion, public opinion showed a decided reversal of form, and Patton's name was a household word, Fame was his again.

And so Fame can be yours. Of course, it won't be quite so universal. But then, what do you want for only a few minutes work. If you can call thinking up a few jingles and yells work. Oh! Guessed it have you? Well, it's about time, too. About time that you were roused from this lethargy, and the soporific state that makes you too lazy to answer a quiz, even with a cash prize attached. And too lazy to vote in elections, to get out to a campus function unless it's a formal dance.

So, come on, people, enter the Cheer contest now going on. Entries will be accepted up to Friday, Jan. 26, and should be handed in to the Tuck Shop in the Union. Judging will take place at the Athletics Festival, on Feb. 2, at the gym, when the cheerleaders give your works of art their first public appearance. The prizes will be suitable for the occasion signifying the accomplishment and service to McGill.

We need some more yells, and it is up to us to do something about it.—A. K.

WHOLE-HEARTED APPROVAL

The Editor, McGill Daily.

Dear Sir,—We, the Student Christian Movement in McGill University, would like to express our whole-hearted approval of the editorial on the Canadian-Japanese Students which appeared in the Daily of Jan. 16. A just and accurate survey of the situation seems to lead inevitably to the conclusion which you reached — that there are motives other than those of national security behind this act of undemocratic exclusion. We would therefore like to compliment you on your fairness and courage in stating it, and assure you of our support.

We remain,
Yours truly,

VETERANS

ERRONEOUS IMPRESSION

Dear Sir: With reference to the report of my remarks during the welcome to the newly enrolled ex-service students, I would like to point out that certain Montreal newspapers erred very greatly in attaching to one statement considerably more emphasis than was actually expressed.

In my remarks, I explained that as ex-servicemen, the new students might encounter a certain amount of antogonism from a very small minority, not only within the University, but also in the other phases of civilian life. Some of the veterans who returned in October did experience a FEW such encounters; and I took pains to make it understood that is was only a few. To eliminate the possibility of further differences, the Veterans' Society made it a policy to avoid any acions or discussions which might lead to such unpleasantness. Recommending this policy to the new students was my only reason for mentioning the subject at all. If, by making an issue of the point, the remark has done more harm than good, I am extremely sorry, and apologize to all concerned.

This inaccurate newspaper account read by "Eight Disgusted Sailors"—all ex-McGill students, I believe, certainly led them to an erroneous conclusion, and was the cause of their indignation and resulting letter.

My personal experiences during my three months at McGill have been very pleasant and everyone, both staff and fellow students, has been most co-operative and friendly. For their assistance and encouragement, I am deeply grateful.

Further discussion on such unpleasant incidents as may have occurred can only serve to cause hard feelings, and will definitely retard the re-adjustment which must be made by us all. I would therefore ask of all students, both regular and ex-service, in the interest of all concerned to please let the matter drop.

Trusting in your co-operation,
I remain,
Yours respectfully,
E. D. E. Hoskin,
President,
McGill Student Veterans' Society.

REVIEWS

Sir: There is always a tendency of reviewers—particularly in The Daily—to gloss over occasional inferior performances by the use of such phrases as "except for a few slips here and there they showed a fine understanding of the mood of the play"; and "he carried his role well, though a trifle heavily in some places," etc.

This is precisely what occurred in yesterday's Daily with reference to the Y.M.H.A.'s production of "Cherry Orchard" by Chekhov. I think that V.C.G. erred very greatly in his judgment. There is no sense in working on the assumption that—because a drama group has performed good work in the past—then, ipso facto, everything it produces must be characterized as "good," "fine," etc. Quite to the contrary: it is necessary to point out the shortcomings noted and to show where the group fell down.

"Cherry Orchard" was on the whole "not so hot." With the excep-

GLOBAL

THE GREAT PARADOX OF OUR TIME.

In the midst of the present global conflict there is exhibited in the writings and speeches of the leaders of our generation the great dilemma of mankind. There is evident among the peoples of the world the sincere and hopeful desires for the establishment of lasting peace for the human race. Never in the history of civilized man has this ideal of "the last war" been so manifest. And with good reason. For only the present untold destruction and suffering brought on by this cancer of the human race has impressed upon the mind of rational man the absolute need for the outlawry of war forever. One need not extend his imagination to perceive the ultimate consequences of future war. Indeed, one shudders at the very thought if these consequences are subjected to rational analysis.

And yet, with this desire for peace and fear of future war we find ourselves awaiting World War III. It is conceived by many of our leaders as well as the common people as but another evolutionary step in the cosmic march of man. Surely, one can contend, without undue pessimism, that the outbreak of future wars is the fundamental threat to the maintenance of modern civilization.

Why therefore do we find ourselves in this dilemma which offers only disillusionment for the future? Our leaders are certainly aware of this danger but they lack the initiative and foresight for concerted solution of the problem.

We are told of the Atlantic Charter and the four freedoms; there is loud harangue about the unlimited possibilities which science offers for the raising of man to material levels of existence which the people of preceding generations could never envisage. They impress upon us the horrors of war and the need for permanent peace. And yet they treat of this fundamental problem with the ruthless and aggressive tactics of nineteenth and early twentieth century power politics. The Dumbarton Oaks proposals are but an extension to the power philosophy common to our community of nation-states. Surely it must fail as have all other attempts at world peace which consider the nation-state as the basis of the world community. Nowhere do we find sincere attempts to establish the peace so fervently asked for by the peoples of the earth.

The problem of war exists and is recognized. The solution is overlooked. For this breach of faith the leaders of the United Nations are to be severely reproached. Certainly the loss of life and material goods cannot be compensated for by expressions of principles and ideals which hold no promise of materialization. This great paradox must be resolved.

—MICHAEL BRECHER, B.A. 3.

Y.M.H.A. Recitals

The first of the recital series to be sponsored by the Music Appreciation Group and Senior Club Council of the Y.M.H.A., will be given tonight at the "Y" Auditorium, 265 Mt. Royal Ave. W., at 8.45 o'clock.

Norman Herschorn and Gilbert Hill will be the soloists presenting a sonata recital for violin and piano. Sonatas of Bach, Richard Strauss and the Grieg Sonata in C minor will be played. Joseph Bell, Director of the "Y" Music Appreciation Group, will add commentaries to the program. Tickets are available at the "Y" office.

Montreal Festivals

The opening concert of the chamber music-series to be presented by the Montreal Festivals will be given tomorrow evening at 8.30 p.m., in the Prince of Wales Salon of the Windsor Hotel. Orlando Cole, eminent cellist and a member of the Curtis String Quartet, will be guest artist. Mr. Cole will join the McGill String Quartet in the Schubert Cello Quintet. Tickets are available at the office of the Montreal Festivals, Room 14, Windsor Hotel.

Athletics Festival III to Feature Interfaculty Boxing Champions

Plans for the forthcoming Athletics Festival III, scheduled for Friday, February 2, are now being drawn up, and the first official announcement was made by the committee last night. As previously stated, the McGill Senior cagers will tackle Clarkson Tech in the feature of the evening, and as a co-feature the finals of the interfaculty boxing championships will be held.

Members of the boxing class have been out practicing since the new term got under way, but Coach Tommy Parr has sent out a call for all those who are interested in entering the tournament to turn out at the Gym this afternoon at 5.15, and the practice sessions from now on will be devoted to whipping the squad into shape so that everyone can make a good showing. Preliminaries for the meet will be held during the week of the Athletics Festival, that is the week after next, and the coach has asked everyone to get in as much practice as possible before that date. Many of the boxers have been playing hockey as a means of getting into shape, and the bouts will be quite short to provide more action.

Contrary to the plan of the previous Festivals, the basketball game will begin at 9.00 and will be the only event on the floor at the time, while the boxing championships will begin at 8.00 and run in conjunction with a variety sports programme; the committee is also cooking up a surprise number, but arrangements for this are not yet complete. The keynote of Festival III, stated a member of the committee, will be action and variety, and it was with this in mind that the University boxing titles were set at stake; the remainder of the programme, moreover, may feature as many as five different sports.

The boxing club is also planning to enter a team in the Montreal Golden Gloves Tournament this year, Coach Parr is on the lookout

S. Lee Trims Brecher, Scott To Near Ping-Pong Finals

S. D. "Sunny" Lee yesterday advanced two rounds in the men's ping pong tournament and established himself as a serious threat for the University championship. In the first match, Lee upset fourth seeded Mike Brecher in straight games, 21-15, 21-17, 21-19. Brecher fought valiantly but could not cope with Lee's superb driving ability.

The second match was a terrific five-game battle. Lee's opponent was Bob Scott, who had two days previously defeated Simon Markel in a hectic match. Lee started out well, winning the first two games, but Scott came back strongly and won the third and fourth games. The fifth was all Lee's; he piled up an 8-2 lead in the early stages and won going away. The score was 21-10, 21-15, 9-21, 17-21, 21-12. This double win puts Lee in the semi-finals, where he will await the outcome of the Bob Ammon vs. Ralph "No Relation" Lee match which will be played during the lunch hour today. The two other semi-finalists are Jack Crystal, former Queen's University champion and favourite to cop the McGill title, and Bud Marsh. Both the semi-final and final rounds will be played off next week.

Interclass Volleyball Tilts To Commence Next Week

"The first match of the current Volleyball season will take place next Tues., Jan. 23 at 5.15 p.m. at the Gym, at which time a complete schedule will have been drawn up," commented Ken Walters, the Volleyball manager. This schedule will be posted in the Gym and if any conflicts arise, the manager asks that he be contacted immediately.

The Arts and Science faculty has announced their teams and practices for these teams will be held on Thursdays. Captains will be appointed by these squads at the earliest convenience. The teams are as follows:

"A" Team: John Piper, Norm Drummond, John Taylor, Jerry Cooper, Joe Greenspan, Keith Pollitt, Frank Bussell, Ed Kostiner.

"B" Team: Peter Gates, Leon Davicho, David Reich, Sy Garber, Harry Baakun, Willie Korman, Bernard Rankin, Bernie Rosenbloom.

"C" Team: Edward Rossy, Ed Solomon, Leon Kluger, John MacLean, Mort Israel, Herbie Lewis, Conrad Shatner, Saul Rubin.

NORTHERN FLIGHTS

by Dorsey

It's mid-winter, kids, and the best skiing of this yere season is upon us—and all around us, too. It must be mid-winter! Mid-year exams are over, the mid-day sun is higher, we're mid-way thru the coal-pile and tin cans rise in a pyre. Middle muddle, fiddle, fuddle; stem one, bend one; wax two; ride down, slip up; grab a bite, pass a lite, hang on tight; nearly thru; sundown, Shawbridge-town. The Editor-in-Chief says that Spring is even heralded, by the appearance of the belated Students Directory. But with physical condition somewhere below mid-season level and the first thaw of the year yet to come (and, coincidentally, the MOC Park Slide on Feb. 8), defense rests its case on calendar evidence. There are eleven more carefully documented reasons which will appear subsequently in an illustrated brochure, with shattering ornithological and climatological evidence. Meanwhile, don't miss any Sunday's MOC'ing the Laurentians.

A brief review of the week-end just past will bring you up to date and then you can lay plans for a nice, safe, scenic tour (waxing room gossip has it that even back-yard Mount Royal has its hazards).

Even the Place Viger was the point of embarkation, the standing room only sign was up early, at least it secured a place on the train for north-bound outing-clubbers. All Saturday p.m. trains brought in additional enthusiasts. At one stage, the temporary prospect of skiing without any boots loomed as a serious concern for the Chef whose culinary capers apparently came before ski equipment in order of importance (?). Despite that the setting sun saw the nearby lookout dotted with a group who wanted to stretch their legs before cookie's call.

What with no alarm clocks to rouse the crew, and an overabundance of gremlins working on the dining-room table, it was no little feat seeing everyone aboard the 9:38 for Ste. Marguerite. With no skiis or boots left behind this time, all 15 headed down the station platform and out over the MOC Trail. This route from Ste. Marguerite to Shawbridge is the sheet-anchor of outing-club trails and represents the earliest efforts of the club to have a trail "all its own". Incorporating the former King and Johannson West trails, it runs down over Hill "60" and for a dozen or so miles over three or four wooded ranges of hills. Without passing thru any towns, it gazes down on Ste. Adele

First Round Commences In Snooker Tournament

The first round of the snooker tournament began this week with two highly interesting matches, in which Shacter defeated Lapedis, and Cohen defeated Marsh. Both of the games were well played, with several interesting and contrasting techniques of play being used by all contestants.

The tournament's second round will begin shortly and is to feature many experienced veterans. Play will be fast and furious when some of these crafty exponents of the game come into the battle.

Eng. III Takes on Grads In Local Hockey Tilt

Manager Jon Ballon announced last night that Grads would meet Engineering III in a scheduled Campus Hockey League game today. The match will begin at 5.15, and both teams are asked to be at the McTavish team rink on time.

In a scheduled tilt yesterday, Commerce won from Engineering 2 by default. In Tuesday's game, Engineering 1 trounced Arts and Science 14-0.

Tomorrow afternoon the Arts and Science 2 squad are scheduled to take on the Engineering 1 sextet, at the same place, same time.

McGILL SUFFERS FIRST LOSS IN BASKETBALL LOOP PLAY; YMHA BEAT INTERMEDIATES

McGill Loses 34-27; Sharkey, Lefcoe Star for Defence

By JOE GREENSPAN

In one of the hardest-fought games yet seen this season, McGill Intermediate basketball quintet received a 34-27 setback at the hands of the undefeated Y.M.H.A. team last night at the 'Y' gym. The Redmen were leading by a score of 25-21 until only seven minutes remained in the second half, when the Blue and White turned on their power and speed and swamped McGill under a barrage of baskets. It was the loser's third defeat of the season, as against two wins.

Waxman Stars

In the van for the 'Y' was Manny Waxman, who was always in the thick of the play, and scored six baskets, all from close in. Mendy Morein, the 'Y's short but tricky foward, also starred with five baskets. Sparking the Red and White squad was Pat Sharkey, who sank four, all of the picture variety. Another notable for the Collegians, was Nex Lefcoe, who fought for the ball consistently, netting three field goals.

From the point of view of score, the game was McGill's from the start to late in the second half. Time and again in 'Y' launched a determined attack, only to be stopped dead by a steady Redmen defence. The Blue and White showed an edge in style and experience, but the Red team exhibited a battling spirit and superior marksmanship. At the half, with McGill, ahead 15-18, both teams were pressing.

The second half produced even faster play. The 'Y's power plays began to break through, but McGill was also fighting harder than ever, and sinking some beautiful shots. With only seven minutes remaining in the game, the trailing 'Y' quintet caught up with and passed the Redmen. The game had now swung totally into the McGill end of the floor. It was here that Waxman showed his best form, potting three baskets while Morein sank two.

McGill	F.G.	F.T.	P.F.	Totals

Weingarten	1	0	1	2

Interfaculty Cage League Continues Elimination Round

Three Matches Played Yesterday; Two More Friday

Three highly-interesting and closely-contested matches were played last night as the second half of the Interfaculty Cage schedule got under way.

Engineering I defeated Med II, 24-19 in a fast-moving tilt. The Plumbers picked up a nine point lead in the first half and stayed ahead the rest of the match. Wolfe and Climan were high scorers for the winners with ten and nine points respectively, while Black racked up six for the Meds.

Arts and Science 3 and 4 caused an upset by trouncing Engineering 2, 23-15. Tarshis and Brecher notched ten and eight points for the victors, while Rabin was leading the Plumbers with six. In a third clash, Med 1 won a disputed tilt over Engineering 3 by a 15-14 score. The game will probably be replayed at a future date.

On Friday two tilts are scheduled. Arts and Science 1B will play Dentistry, while Commerce takes on Arts and Science IA. Both these games will start at 5.15. Macdonald has announced that their entry will not participate in league play for at least a couple of weeks due to examinations.

Greenberg Leads Victors To Win Over Redmen

By LARRY SIROTA

The largest crowd of the season watched a determined Combine quintet hand the McGill cagers their first loss of the current season at the Sir Arthur Currie Gymnasium last night by a 43-33 margin. The game was fast and furious all the way, both teams playing air-tight ball. However, the rejuvenated Sample Dress players had too much polish around the basket for the Redmen.

Combines Tied

The Collegians could not maintain a sustained drive during the second half with the result that the accurate shooting of the black and White began to take its toll. This puts the Combine crew into a first place tie with McGill in the M.B.L. standings. Top scorer of the night with fourteen points and by far the best player on the floor was Dave Greenberg, the recent addition to the Combines, who seemed to revel in the heavy going.

Before the opening whistle had even died down. Greenberg opened the scoring with a beautiful back-handed shot. Etcovitch, on a long throw, and Ditkofsky, on left-handed effort, made the score 6-0, before Leo Rosentzveig netted three points in succession. This was closely followed by two quick baskets by Davidon and Greenberg on pic-

McGill Swimmers Win Laurels In CASA Meet at NDG Pool

McGill swimmers demonstrated their readiness to take on any competition Varsity or Western have to offer in the scheduled Intercollegiate Telegraphic Meet February 21, by walking off with the laurels in the C.A.S.A. meet at the N.D.G. Pool last night.

The Redmen notched two firsts and two seconds in the three events run off, and showed plenty of style in bowling over all opposition. Maclean demonstrated a lot of form for the Red natators, by winning the 200 yard back stroke race in the speedy time of 3 minutes, 1.8 seconds.

West of Verdun won the Men's 50 yard free style in the fast time of 28 seconds, while Hoffman of McGill placed second. On the 150 yard medley relay, two Red and White teams placed first and second. The team composed of Mahon, Fineberg, and Hoffman won the race in 1 minute and 37 seconds.

In the girl's events, Bobby Fenton of McGill placed first in the 50 yard free style contest, covering the distance in 34.1 seconds. A team formed of Red and White mermaids finished third in the 200 yard free style relay. The N.D.G. aquabelles won this event, swimming the distance in two minutes and 17.4 seconds.

Following are the complete results:

Men

200 yard Back Stroke: 1. Maclean, McGill; 2. Macdonald, Y.M.C.A. Time, 3.01.8.

50 yard Free Style: 1. West, Verdun; 2. Hoffman, McGill; 3. P. Van Wagner, Verdun. Time, 0.28.0.

150 yard Medley Relay: 1. McGill; 2. McGill; 3. Verdun. Time, 1.37.

Women

50 yard Free Style: 1. Fenton, McGill; 2. Kennedy, M.A.A.A.; 3. Healy, N.D.G. Time, 34.1.

200 yard Free Style Relay: 1. N.D.G.; 2. Verdun; 3. McGill. Time, 2.17.4.

Hobart to Lead SCM Chapel Service Sunday

tion of Fran Malis, most of the characters seemed very obviously uncomfortable and artificial in the parts they filled. Coordination, enunciation, and sincerity were all lacking; in short almost the only feature of the play that most people attending were carried away by was the excellent scenery and stage effects.

The Russian drama is not slow moving. It is merely that its denouement is somewhat long. This is not a handicap in the least: it allows the development of real atmosphere and background, as well as an opportunity to know the characters. Anyone who saw Dostoievsky's "Crime and Punishment," filmed in France before the war, will be a witness to that.

What is true is that the "Y" Players overreached themselves in attempting to produce in a relatively short time an example of a type of drama with whose characterization and method they were largely unfamiliar. More experienced New York actors have spent much more time in attempting to put over "Cherry Orchard", nor have they met with approval in all quarters.

In no sense am I attempting to underrate the reputation of the "Y" Players. As a rule they are capable of quite a sustained dramatic production, but this time they should have had a bit more practice than they did.

Yours truly,
HELIOS.

The Daily's reviewer had this to say in reply: "It is a gentlemanly principle of drama criticism that one is less exacting of an amateur group than one is of a professional performance. Since there is an excellent possibility that Mr. Helios was present on a different evening, there is little point in arguing over personal opinions of individual acting. "The Cherry Orchard" was beyond question a first-class job of directing by Herbert Whittaker,—direction which, as the review said, "surmounted the occasional deficiencies of the actors." Mr. Helios's accusation of lack of preparation seems hardly valid—this reviewer was present at casting and early rehearsals at the beginning of June. And to deny that a play is essentially static (the word "slow" was not used) which has a second scene in which the only real action is the incident of the tramp briefly crossing the stage—and even that action does not directly contribute to the progress of the play—seems a point rather carelessly taken."—Ed.

war, "People began to think in terms of Hemisphere defence" in Canada as in other states. Prof. Humphreys put forward his belief that at the 1940 P.A.U. conference in Havana, though we were not represented, our defence was considered, because two weeks after it, we made an agreement with th U.S.A. for the defence of "the northern half of the western hemisphere." This, said Prof. Humphrey, put our foreign policy on an entirely new basis.

Then he suggested that Canada's dollar shortage early in the war was a factor making for pan-Americanism. Then in support of his belief in the existence of this Canadian trend, Prof. Humphrey cited a number of instances of increased Canadian government connections with South American countries.

Finally, Prof. Humphrey dwelt on the influence of the U.S.A. in preventing Canada's invitation to join the P.A.U. He quoted a document issued by the U.S. State Department in 1928 for the information of American delegates to the P.A.U. conference of that year and only made public in 1942. This documnt shows, said the speaker, that the Americans were then opposed to Canada's entry into the P.A.U. on the grounds that it would have meant giving Great Britain a say in the organization.

"The real reason Canada is not a member of the P.A.U. is that the U.S.A. does not want us," stated the professor and, "There is still evidence of the U.S. State Department's view that Canada's foreign policy is made in Downing Street," he continued.

Prof. Humphry ended his address with a strong argument in favor of Canada's joining the P.A.U.

A lively discussion followed the speech of the evening; many of the members present had visited South American countries. The question of the advisibility of Canada's increasing her investments in South America was brought up. Then a member suggested that a C.C.F. government in Canada might endanger our relations with South America. To this last point, Prof. Humphrey remarked, "That is a question of foreign investment in Canada."

ture plays. Curran sunk a free throw and the score now read Combines 8, McGill 7.

Close Checking Game

Both squads continued to play kitty-bar-the-door basketball before Etcovitch and Weshler potted two field goals. The score then seesawed back and forth with Rosentzveig contributing five markers for the collegians cause. Harms, Goodwin and Davidon then sent the Redmen into the lead on three pretty passing plays. Rodgers ended the scoring for the half which saw the Senior Red and White cagers trot off the court with an 18-15 lead.

In the second canto, the veteran Sample Dress men had it much their own way as they outshot and outscored the collegians by a 28-15 margin. The return of coach Moe Brenhouse seemed to add zest and consistency to the Combine attack and hard as they tried to coordinate their offense into a cohesive unit, the McGill boys just couldn't get their powerhouse rolling.

It was all Dave Greenberg as the Combines set about the task of assuming command. After Davidon and Etcovitch had interchanged free shots, Vic Curran sent the Redmen into a short-lived lead as he faked his opponent out of position and netted a one-handed beauty from far out.

The Black and White then began to pull away from their college rivals as Etcovitch started them on their way by virtue of a picture shot from the corner. Greenberg and Weshler put the game on ice for the Old Brocks on two swift baskets. The game was now wide open with Brenhouse and Rosentzveig leading frequent forays into enemy territory. However the proficiency of the Combine crew around the McGill basket was much more evident.

Brenhouse and Ditkofsky ended the scoring.

for everybody interested in boxing so that he can start training his squad for serious competition. He claims that several of last year's Interfaculty champs would have had little difficulty in winning their weights, and would like to enter a strong team this year.

There is still a shortage of new McGill yells for the big yell contest on Festival night. The winner's name will go down to posterity, and a few minutes' thought is all that is needed to compose the cheer that McGill students will give for years to come.

as it winds over Mont Philippe, and offers one of the more enjoyable tours of the whole region.

As is frequently the case, the trail had to be broken out, but it was such a light powder that none of the lead-off boys was more than moderately drenched with sweat. Lunch by two fires on the lee shore of Lac Violon was a welcome refresher with tea and toasted (well, thawed and slightly charred) sandwiches. The rest of the way featured the downhills known to all who have covered this trail, with the lookout and final swish to the MOC house.
